Mr. Darrow drew further from the talesman that the deputy had said he was formerly a guard at the state penitentiary and talked about Harry Orchard. This was the first time Orchard's name had been brought into the case.

Mr. Darrow next took up the examination of George Walker, the butcher, who was passed into seat No. 6 last Thursday. Walker said at that time that he had an opinion and a challenge was interposed by the state. The defense resisted at the time, but today after a few questions by Mr. Darrow, the defense joined in the request for Walker's discharge. It was ordered by Judge Wood.

"But you could disregard it in the light of the evidence?"

Jones said he had neither received nor read any of the socialist papers which had been freely distributed in and around had been freely distributed in and around Boise during the past few morths.

Jones had been under examination nearly half an hour before Mr. Hawley finally asked him if he had any conscientious scruples against capital punishment.

"I have." said the talesman.

"How long have you entertained that idea?" asked Judge Wood.

"I was raised that way."

"Excused." said the judge, who suggested that in future it would be well to ask the talesmen about their scruples earlier in the examinations.

Illingsworth was eventually challenged for cause by the state, the defense offering no objection to his

Carpenter Takes His Turn.

D. W. Henry, a carpenter, was the next talesman called to seat No. 6 which had proved one of the hardest on the panel to fill. Henry said he had never been a member of any union. He had no opinion, however, as to the guilt or innocence of the men accused of the murder of former Governor Steunenberg. Henry went through the state's examination without a hitch and was passed over to the defense. Under a running fire of questions by Mr. Parrow, the talesman said he had discussed the case but little, but had read the papers "a right smart." he papers "a right smart."
"Did you believe the papars?" asked Mr.

Henry insisted that the case had not interested him.
"Do you know who is on trial here?" asked Mr. Darrow.
"Mover, Haywood and Pettibone, I believe."

"Are they all on trial here?"
"No, sir; I believe not."
"Well, which one is on trial?"
"I don't know as I could say. I believe it is Mr. Haywood."
"We think so, too," said Mr. Darrow.

Mr. Darrow next asked the talesman if he knew the accused men were officers of the Western Federation of Miners. He said he saw something like that in the pa-"Do you know what the Western Federation of Miners is?"

Mr. Darrow challenged the talesman on the ground that he did not understand the ordinary words used in trials.

Judge Wood denied it.

Henry then declared he would give a Socialist or Republican the same fair trial he would give a Democrat. He would presume Haywood innocent until he was proved guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. "Did you read what the president wrote about this case?"

Henry was passed temporarily. Mr. Darrow said he would question him further tomorrow relative to alleged conversations with others concerning the trial.

Farmer Holds His Place. Mr. Darrow then turned to George H. McIntyre, the talesman in seat No. 7. Mr. McIntyre is a farmer. He was passed without challenge by the state last Thursday. Asked if he had any prejudice against labor unions, the talesman said that under certain circumstances he did. This prejudice was because of things he had heard the unions had done. He had no prejudice against labor unions as such. What prejudices he had. McIntyre said, extended to the Western Federation of Miners. He did not think—in fact he was positive—this prejudice would not affect his judgment in the light of evidence.

The examination of W. N. Rudge, another farmer, who had occupied seat No. 8 since he was passed by the state last Thursday, was taken up by Edgar L. Wilson, one of the attorneys for the defense. Mr. Wilson was formerly a member of Judge congress and a law partner of Judge Wood. Mr. Rudge said he had read what the president wrote about Moyer and

Rudge declared he had neither heard nor

PARASITES "DO" THE GREEN BUGS

Miss Laura Frankenfield to Natural Enemy of the Latest Wheat Pest Turned Loose by Agricultural Department.

SALT LAKE GIRL TO STAR IN EXTERMINATION ONLY A MAT-TER OF TIME.

> Washington, May 14 .- It was announced by the agricultural department today that the green bug, or spring grain aphis, which has done so much damage to wheat and other small grain in Texas and Oklahoma and in a few of the southern counhoma and in a few of the southern counties of Kansas, already is practically exterminated by its natural parasite, a very minute black fly. In Texas and Oklahoma the bug has practically disappeared through the agency of the parasite and reports from southern Kansis state that at least 50 per cent of the bugs are parasitized in all the infested fields in that section. The report adds that if the favorable weather continues through the present week the bug will have been absolutely exterminated.

Three agents from the bureau are new in the field, directing the onslaught upon the bugs. The weather conditions this spring have been favorable. conditions this spring have been favorable to the multiplication of the bug, which becomes a serious pest only under such conditions. The parasites, too, multiply only under favorable weather conditions, but the same extensions with the same symptoms were such conditions. only under favorable weather conditions, but they soon exterminate their enemy.

The green bug was noticed first in this country in 1884. While more or less common every year the condition which favor its destructive abundance occur at comparatively long intervals. It caused great damage in 1890 and again in 1900, and a third outbreak is now coming to a close. Every year, however, a few of the bugs are present in wheat fields, especially in the southern wheat districts, but not sufficient to cause notable damage.

The parasites, too, multiply as well as I ever did.

Nothing I Ate Agreed With Me.

MRS. LENORA BODENHAMER

Mrs. Lenora Bodenhamer, R. F. D.

Box 99. Kernersville, N. C., writes: "I suffered with stomach trouble and I suffered with stomach trouble and indigestion for some time, and nothing that I are agreed with me. I was very nervous and experienced a continual feeling of uncasiness and fear. I took medicine from the doctor, but it did me

"I found in one of your Peruna books a description of my symptoms. I then wrote to Dr. Hartman for advice. He said I had catarrh of the stomach. Took Peruna and Manalin and followed his directions and can now say that I feel no good.
